Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Ian Madley

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Ian Madley

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Ian Madley

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parents and Carers

As we welcome your children back into school for many it will be almost 6 months since they were last in school so we can expect more than the normal levels of excitement and nervousness.

Mrs Eken will have been sending you information about the changes that we have had to make in the school to make sure that we are meeting the guidelines from both the government and the city council.

The important thing to remember is that the children do not pose a risk to each other or to staff and parents. But adults do pose a risk to each other, so it is important that we all adhere to social distancing especially when dropping off and collecting children from school.

Our focus this year is going to be to ensure that children are able to catch up on the learning they have missed out on over the lockdown and as governors we would encourage you to continue to support their learning. All the evidence we have is that you have done an excellent job at stepping in to be the "teacher" during the lockdown.

Hopefully with all the measures we have in place it will not be necessary for the school to be closed again this year and you will not have to take such an active role again.

Finally, we have a vacancy for a parent governor on the governing body. If you would be interested in supporting the school this way, please contact the school office in the first instance.

Yours sincerely
